

Diane Marie Amann is Regents' Professor of International Law, the Emily & Ernest Woodruff Chair in International Law, and a Faculty Co-Director of the Dean Rusk International Law Center at the University of Georgia School of Law. She also holds a courtesy appointment at the university's School of Public & International Affairs and is an affiliated faculty member of its African Studies Institute.

She served from December 2012 to June 2021 as International Criminal Court Prosecutor Fatou Bensouda's Special Adviser on Children in & affected by Armed Conflict.

The author of eighty publications in English, French and Italian, Professor Amann writes on issues related to international criminal justice, human and child rights, constitutional law, and security governance. Her book on the roles of women professionals at the International Military Tribunal at Nuremberg is under contract with Oxford University Press.

Formerly Professor of Law, Martin Luther King Jr. Hall Research Scholar, and Director of the California International Law Center at the University of California-Davis School of Law, she has been a visiting professor or researcher at the Faculté de Droit of the Université de Paris 1 (Panthéon-Sorbonne), Oxford University Faculty of Law's Bonavero Institute of Human Rights and Mansfield College, Max Planck Institute Luxembourg, Northwestern University Pritzker School of Law, the University of California-Berkeley and UCLA law schools, the USC Shoah Foundation Center for Advanced Genocide Research, and the Irish Centre for Human Rights at the National University of Ireland-Galway.

Prior to entering academia, she practiced law in San Francisco before state and federal trial courts as well as the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. She was an Assistant Federal Public Defender, a solo federal criminal defense practitioner, and a litigation Associate at Morrison & Foerster. She also served as a Law Clerk for U.S. Supreme Court Justice John Paul Stevens, about whom she has written several biographical articles, and for Judge Prentice H. Marshall of the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois. Professor Amann holds a Dr.h.c. degree in law from Universiteit Utrecht in the Netherlands. She earned her J.D. cum laude from Northwestern University, where she served as a Note & Comment editor of the Northwestern University Law Review and was inducted into the Order of the Coif, her M.A. in political science from the University of California-Los Angeles, and her B.S. in journalism, with highest honors, from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

She is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, a Counsellor and past Vice President of the American Society of International Law, and a past Chair of the Section on International Law of the Association of American Law Schools. She received the 2013 Prominent Women in International Law Award from ASIL's Women in International Law Interest Group as well as the 2010 Mayre Rasmussen Award for the Advancement of Women in International Law from the American Bar Association's Section of International Law.